PEACE STUDIES JOURNAL: REVIEW FORM

Please complete the review report form which will be used to directly inform the decision as to the suitability of the article for the Peace Studies Journal, and to suggest guidelines for any future revisions identified.

In making your report, please ensure that you provide a clear verdict on the paper:

- Accept
- Minor revisions required (the revised manuscript will not normally be returned to you for checking)
- Major revisions required (you will normally receive the revised manuscript for re-review)
- Reject

Please ensure that you detail your required revisions clearly, and provide an overall evaluation of the paper that is explicit, courteous and respectful to the author(s), and indicative of the standards expected for publication in a journal concerned with peace, conflict, security, and social justice studies.

In your evaluation (see page 2), please pay particular attention to the following:

- The originality of the subject matter, and whether the manuscript would be of interest to the international, academic and activist readership of the Peace Studies Journal
- The theoretical contribution made by the manuscript.
- Whether the article draws on an appropriate range and depth of literature. (If not please indicate which sources of literature should be included by the author in future)
- Whether methods employed are rigorous, ethical, and suitable for the topic under investigation.
- Whether the findings presented are subjected to suitable analysis and sound conclusions drawn.
- Does the paper clearly identify any implications for future activism and/or developing theories or activism for peace and social justice? Are these implications consistent with the findings and conclusions of the paper?
- Is the piece well presented and organized? Does the paper clearly express its case, measured against the technical language of the field and the expected knowledge of the journal's readership? Has attention been paid to the clarity of expression and readability, such as sentence structure, jargon use, acronyms, etc. Is the paper written in a manner, which is non-ableist, non-speciesist, non-sexist, non-homophobic, non-classist, non-racist, non-colonialist, unlikely otherwise to cause offence, and appropriate for an international academic journal?

The Peace Studies Journal holds to the utmost respect, love, and care when reviewing manuscripts. While we do take off the names of the submitter, we do ask the reviewers to keep their name and e-mail contact on the Reviewer's Comment Sheet in-order for the author to contact the reviewer directly for assistance and advice. This we feel and argue is the most productive and useful reviewing process for advancing the field of peace studies.

If there are any comments you would like to make in confidence to the editors and not for onward transmission to author(s), please complete the 'confidential comments for editors' section.

About Peace Studies Journal

The Peace Studies Journal, Founded in 2008 out of the initiative of the Central New York Peace Studies Consortium was established as an informal journal to publish the articles presented at the annual Peace Studies Conference, but in 2009 the Journal was developed into an international interdisciplinary free online peer-reviewed scholarly journal. The goal of the Journal is to promote critical scholarly work on the areas of identities politics, peace, nonviolence, social movements, conflict, crisis, ethnicity, culture, education, alternatives to violence, inclusion, repression and control, punishment and retribution, globalization, economics, ecology, security, activism, and social justice.

The Journal welcomes scholars, activists, and community leaders to submit. We hold to a caring, welcoming, and constructive process aiding in the publishing of your articles/review, rather than turning you away with delayed harsh and deconstructive review feedback. We encourage articles that interweave theory and practice and especially welcome articles on topics that have not yet been examined.

Please read these guidelines and then send your article, essay, review, research notes, conference summary, etc. to the appropriate Associate Editor (see www.peaceconsortium.org).
